

HISTORY

Archibald's Barbeque

The lore surrounding Archibald's Barbeque is almost as thick and delicious as its eponymous sauce. After opening in 1962, Archibald's Barbeque was just a mom-and-pop joint run by George and Betty Archibald Sr. Legend even has it that in the early days famed football coach Bear Bryant frequented the eatery, no doubt leaving with the occasional rib tucked under his iconic hounds-tooth hat. Though they started small, half a century and three generations worth of experience have seen the Archibald family spread their recipes far and wide, gaining acclaim from The New York Times, Good Morning America, ESPN Taste of the Town, and Southern Living Magazine. Archibald is ranked #2 in the Nation for BBQ.

George and Betty's successors still use the same hickory wood to add a smoky richness to their meat and sauce. This imparts crispiness to outer layers of rib slabs while leaving pulled pork moist and tender, like a beaux professing his love and shuffling to remain dramatically under the oscillating sprinkler. The staff serves their primary fare with bread, a choice of two sides, and slaw that adds a creamy balance to the spicy flavors of half-chicken, ribs, and slice pork.
